It has been said by unblased judges that teachers roady sition and interference with what may ers and to refuse admittance to be regarded as their common rights by ers both public and priwate corporations

This is not strictly true. It is not the nature of the average citizen of this wa to stand such treatment for any length of time without making a kick, vigorous one, too, especially when he finds that his private comfort and

It would seem that the latter do not inink so. It is all the same to them when a passenger has once pald his fare whether he gets a seat in the car or is obliged to hang on to the rail of the rear platform, at the risk of being dashed to pieces by some passing truck or ash-cart.

No attempt is ever made on the part of the railroad officials to meet the increased demand during the busy hours of the day by largely increasing the number of cars that are run, and start.

uraged to receive every passenger who can possibly be squeezed aboard, until those within begin to feel themselves flattening out as if they were being compressed by some giant hydraulic machine that was gradually crushing the breath out of them.

Every additional passenger thus secured represents the velvet upon which the company is conducting its business.
It is a matter of common knowledge that the profits of all the street railroad companies of New York are enormous, and in almost every instance their stock is so valuable that it seldom comes into the market. The rate of profits is increasing every year with the rapid growth of the city's population and the increasing demand for travelling accommodations.

An evidence of this is the organization of hig syndicates of capitalists, which does have sprung into existence during the last few years, and which now have al-

Why is it that no law or ordinance has been enacted which will do away, at least in some degree, with the disgraceful overcrowding of the public conveyances of the city? There is no one who will not say that there is plenty of room for wise and intelligent legislation on this subject if the present laws do not give sufficient protection to the people in their rights.

The extraordinary session is being held ursuant to a call issued by the Royal hief, Mr. Walter Scott, and is the result, it is said, of a certain dissatisfaction among Eastern members as to a future policy.

After Royal Chief Scott called the lansmen to order, it was found that wenty or more holding certificates hadot been initiated in the Grand Sessions. A committee was appointed to the suit of the cities of New York and sions. A committee was appointed to inspect the credentials of these men.

That two factions probably exist was shown in the unusually careful manner with which the inspection was carried on. This occupied the morning hours.

Acting Mayor McClellan, it is expected, will call some time to-day and deliver a short address of welcome.

The prisoners were in charge of Deputy Sheriffs Dairymple, Eurke, Murray, Brown and Kelly.

At it o'clock the court-room of Part I, of the Court of General Sessions had filled up with those lawyers who had succeeded in finding it. Among them were nearly all who have become famous in the practice of criminal law in this city, and many who have grown while-haired in the service. Fully fifty the Grand Jurymen yet to be sworn in and a favored few spectators, they filled the largs room.

It was II.13 o'clock when the court officers called for silence and 'hats off,' and then Recorder Smyth and Jurges Cowing, Martine and Fitzgerald walked into the court-room from the udges' chambers. there will be formal and appropriate ceremonies."

Col. Fellows asked that the Judges and juryinen would excuse any confusion in the court proceedings during the next few days, as the papers and records in the District-Attorney's office were still in a mixed up state, owing to their removal to the new building.

Recorder Smyth rose to reply to Col. Fellows He said that he agreed with all that the District-Attorney had said, and that he hoped when the proper time should arrive there would be formal and impressive dedicatory ceremonies, in which the Mayor, the Supreme Court Judges and other Judges would honor the occasion by their presence.

Judges Martine, Cowing and Fitzgerald then left the court-room and the roil of the Grand Jury for the September term was called, this being the first real court business ever transacted in the new building.

The first lawyer's fee to be paid in the new building was handed to Emanuel Friend, of the firm of Friend & House, by ex-Sergt, of Folice James W. Jordan, in Part I. of General Sessions, immediately after the Grand Jury roil was called, Mr. Friend promptly invited a few friends across the street and "cracked a bottle."

William J. Berry, librarian of the Bar Association, was enosen foreman of the new Grand Jury, and all hands went upstairs to their fine new room at II.45 o'clock and entered upon their duties.

The first man indicted was John D. Cameron, a telegraph operator. He was indicted for grand larceny for stealing $250 from Leander J. Howell, another telegraph operator, and his room-mate. Cameron was recently arrested in Helena, Mont., and an officer will be sent from here to bring him on.

Judge Martine presided over Part II. of the Court of General Sessions. The first man to plead was Lloyd Rogers, of 125 Greenwich street. He pleaded guilty to burglary in the third degree.
